Greening Growth

Reducing fuel subsidies could have a large impact on greenhouse gas emissions in some countries.

Greening Growth

The industries that pollute the most are not the biggest employers.

Greening Growth

There is still much potential for reducing greenhouse gas emissions.

Gender in Education, Employment and Economic Empowerment

Men still are paid more than women.

Gender in Education, Employment and Economic Empowerment

The proportion of women participating in the labour force has increased substantially in the past 50 years.

Women employment rates % of women aged 15-64 who are employed in OECD countries

Gender in Education, Employment and Economic Empowerment

Women spend more time doing unpaid work.

Innovation

There is great variation among countries on R&D expenditure.

Innovation

Countries could make it easier to start new businesses.

Innovation

Governments could do more to support business R&D.

Getting Ready for the Jobs of Tomorrow

Youth are more vulnerable than adults.
10% of youth are neither in school nor work.

Getting Ready for the Jobs of Tomorrow

Many say they need more training to cope with work.

Getting Ready for the Jobs of Tomorrow

Governments could do more to support childcare.

Restoring Trust in the System

Co-operation among governments is increasing.

Tax treaties signed between G20 summits

Tax information exchange agreements and double tax conventions

Restoring Trust in the System

Tax revenue's share of GDP varies widely across countries.

Restoring Trust in the System

As do income tax and social security contributions.

Shifting Wealth

Developing and emerging countries are growing faster than advanced economies.

Shifting Wealth

Developing countries are less indebted than advanced economies.

Shifting Wealth

Poverty rates are falling more rapidly in developing countries.
